

American Crow (Corvus brachyrhynchos)

Crows are medium to large-sized birds with bills not as long or heavy as those of ravens. Crows have a fan-shaped tail in flight which is different from the wedge-shaped tail of the raven. Crows make a characteristic “caw” call that is not as “throaty” or guttural as that of the raven. Crows live in a variety of habitats and are quite widespread.

Crowboy

Crowboy was raised by a well-intentioned animal lover and let go once it was able to fly. He stayed near the house. Curious as crows are, he stuck his beak through the dog kennel fence and the dog bit his beak off. We hoped the beak would grow back but it never did.
