

Puck (Terrapene carolina)

One of our box turtles is a Common Box Turtle. He has orange neck markings. He was someone's pet, but while allowing him to roam their backyard, the family ran over him with a lawn mower. He survived with relatively minor injuries to his shell.

Tuck (Terrapene ornate)

The other box turtle is a Western Box Turtle. She has a plainer shell. She crawled into a yard where a dog chewed on her shell, but was rescued in time.

Box turtles are reclusive by nature, so it may be challenging to spot them in the enclosure.
